Did you know that the association had undergone four different name changes since 1913 before deciding upon the name of "Canadian Institute of Public Health Inspectors" in 1963?

Welcome to Canadian Institute of Public Health Inspectors (CIPHI) first official electronic newsletter! The editorial staff's goal is to pass on timely information of national activities to the membership from the National Executive Council (NEC) and yourselves. The Newsletter will become another communication medium which will compliment the profession's other national communication tools, namely CIPHI's Website and Environmental Health Review.

Regular issues of the newsletter will be published and the newsletter staff welcomes any suggestions, comments, submissions of articles or photos that you would like to share with the members. Also if you want to have the NEC provide you with further information or clarification on a topic matter that that may be of interest to the rest of the membership then let us know.

Also, the NEC is opening the suggestion box for possible names to the newsletter. Are you satisfied with the title 'National Newsletter' or would you prefer something else that is more catchy? Submit your creative thoughts and who knows, you may be featured in the next newsletter!

So, without further adieu we hope you like this first edition. The only direction to go from here is up!

CORE COMPETENCIES FOR THE ENVIRONMENTAL PUBLIC HEALTH PROFESSION

Recent Public Health events in Canada have shown there is a strong need to prepare the Environmental Public Health workforce to address the complex environment of the 21st century.

The development of Core Competencies for all Public Health Professionals will strengthen and enhance the Public Health System in Canada by defining measurable core functions and competencies that guide Public Health Practice.

A Steering Committee has been formed with support from the Public Health Agency of Canada to develop core competencies for the Environmental Public Health Profession. This is an exciting opportunity for health protection professionals to determine their future directions. The National Executive Council and Board of Certification of CIPHI are leading this process on behalf of the profession.

Core competencies can be defined as the skills, abilities, knowledge and attitudes necessary for a modern-day Public Health workforce. These skills are common to all Public Health Professionals and are fundamental to delivering core Public Health Services.

The National Executive Council of CIPHI is committed to keeping you informed about this project and I encourage you to check the CIPHI website www.ciphi.ca to find out more as it becomes available. Look for regular updates in the coming months on the progress of this project and the answers to frequently asked questions.

PHI REALITY TV?

Congratulations to Mr. Robert Mancini from Winnipeg, MB for winning the acting role for a reality cooking show!

Back in November 2004, Frantic Films from Winnipeg posted a notice with CIPHI seeking candidates for a proposed half hour episode series titled "Pantry Raid" for the Food Network.

Robert will examine the kitchen, the habits, food preparation, and food storage of the chosen household. Problems are identified and solutions provided along with another person who's specialty is space/storage organization.

There were 10 CIPHI members who applied and the three finalists were: Robert, Raegan Stockton (Moncton, NB) and Theresa Wawrykow (Canmore, AB). The membership would love to see your audition tape!

The film company starts shooting in 2 weeks and Robert will keep us informed as to the details when they come available.

We are like a cop. Not too many like to see us but as soon as there is a problem ... we are the first ones called.
