Wow! Just think that the Canadian Institute of Public Health Inspectors (CIPHI) will be 73 years 'young' on January 3, 2007. When I entered the profession I thought everything would be handled by the well oiled CIPHI machine. For the most part, things were well handled but I also found many opportunities to contribute to CIPHI to make it even better to what it is today, as so many of you have as well. Over the last 10 years the face of CIPHI and the profession has changed significantly. We have moved from a diploma education to a bachelor degree educational requirement. We have gone from 2 to 5 post secondary schools training environmental health professionals. A research and educational arm of CIPHI was created known as the Environmental Health Foundation of Canada. The quality of Annual Educational Conferences have improved tremendously. CIPHI now offers more benefits to the membership than we have ever seen. Core competencies for the profession are in development. Members continue to publish their research in the Environmental Health Review. Environmental public health advocacy is more active than ever before. The CIPHI website and the electronic National Newsletter have been created to keep you up to date on the activities of our profession and the National Executive Council. All of this and more from a volunteer base of you and I. I am sure I have only highlighted the proverbial 'tip of the iceberg' of what we have achieved over the last 10 years, and as such we must celebrate our achievements. One way of doing this is during Environmental Public Health Week (EPHW).

In 2007, EPHW will be held from January 15 to 21. EPHW posters have been delivered to all Branches who have requested them and the poster can be download from the CIPHI website. Examples of EPHW celebrations have included municipal and provincial recognition of the week, public booth display, press releases, media interviews, and corporate sponsor recognition just to name a few. Let us know what you did to celebrate EPHW 2007 by e-mailing us at newsletter@ciphi.ca.

Also, earlier this year a contest was held for all members to submit photos for the EPHW 2007 poster depicting what environmental public health professionals do. This year, the winning photo submissions came from Phi Phan (Alberta Branch), Sonia Singh (Ontario Branch), and Matt Ruf (Ontario Branch). Look for their photo submissions in the poster. Congratulations to these three individuals.

Finally, this will be my last issue as editor of the National Newsletter. I would like to thank the newsletter staff, the National Executive Council, and the CIPHI membership for your support and guidance over the last two years. May 2007 bring you and your family joy, good health and prosperity.

Respectfully,

Victor Mah

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH FOUNDATION AWARDS

The EHFC is pleased to advise that 4 out of the 5 Len Hiebert – EHR Awards have been made to the accredited colleges with Public Health Inspection programs, and we are expecting the 5th on to be awarded shortly.

The EHFC reminds CIPHI members that there are two $500.00 educational awards available for members who are pursuing their education. These are the Lilli Ann Zahara Award and the CIPHI – EHFC Continuing Education Award. Information on these and application forms can be found on the EHFC website: www.ehfc.ca.

The EHFC has sent out a newsletter to all past donors to the Foundation letting them know how their donations are used, and the fact that 100% of their donation is used for the designated purpose.

Finally, the EHFC is working with Health Canada and the National Aboriginal Advancement Foundation to develop a scholarship program intended to bring First Nations persons into the public health community.

CANADIAN PARTNERSHIP FOR CONSUMER FOOD SAFETY EDUCATION

The Canadian Partnership for Consumer Food Safety Education (CPFSE) was founded to promote food safety education. More information can be found at www.canfightbac.org which host the Ask Mrs. Cookwell service, which is receiving over 300 hits per day. CPFSE has a number of programs of interest to public health units, but only two Public Health Units (from Ontario) are current supporters of the Partnership. It is recommended that all health units should join – details are on the website. Current activities include: working with the Ontario Ministry of Health and Long Term Care to bring the Fight BAC!® campaign to farmers' markets – a video is being produced for general use; the Food for Health travelling exhibition and website will be opening in March 2007 at the Agricultural Experimental Farm in Ottawa, and then across the country until 2011; and with a sponsorship from the Chicken Farmers of Canada, there will be a seasonal outreach program in December.

Respectfully submitted,

Duncan Ellison
EHFC Board Chairman
Treasurer, CFPSE.

The National Newsletter is having a photo contest. Send us your good, bad or ugly environmental public health photos. Categories are food, water, air and environment (e.g. pools, housing, personal services, waste management and communicable disease). At the end of the year, if your picture is chosen by the Newsletter staff as the picture of the year, you will win the dubious honor of Photo of the Year. Please include your name, the Branch you belong to, photo credits, category, caption (optional) and any brief commentary you wish to provide. E-mail your photos to: newsletter@ciphi.ca. Good luck!

Environmental Public Health Week 2007

congratulations from the Office of Public Health Practice, Public Health Agency of Canada

On behalf of the Office of Public Health Practice, the Core Competencies and Skills Enhancement for Public Health Programs wish to acknowledge the important contribution of Environmental Public Health Professionals. Environmental Public Health Week is a time to formally recognize Environmental Public Health Professional's contribution to public health practice; however, the importance of environmental public health needs to be celebrated throughout the entire year.

Environmental Public Health Professionals have the important role of working to protect the health of all Canadians on environmental health issues. The breadth of your practice with groups, communities and populations is unique in public health. You provide the foundation for health protection and the health and safety of our communities, and are a cornerstone of public health and the health care system at large.

The Public Health Agency of Canada commends the important work of the Canadian Institute of Public Health Inspectors and its members in your day-to-day work. We also congratulate the Institute on its endeavors to move Environmental Public Health towards the development and implementation of professional continuing competency programs. We look forward to our continued partnership with you!

CIPHI TWINNING EXCHANGE UPDATE

It was a pleasure to participate in the CIPHI Twinning Exchange program. Gillian Scahill was the Irish delegate representing the Environmental Health Officers Association (EHOA). Gillian began our exchange by visiting Nova Scotia from August 11 to 24, 2006. Galway City, Ireland became my home from September 21 to October 7, 2006. During my stay in Galway, I had the opportunity to stay and work with Gillian and her husband Enda, who is also an Environmental Health Officer. Both work for the Health Services Executive-Environmental Health, in Galway City. I experienced wonderful Irish hospitality and broad exposure to the field of Environmental Health in western Ireland. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the National Executive Council of CIPHI, and my employer Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture for making this possible.

MCPA IN DRINKING WATER

Health Canada, as secretariat to the Federal-Provincial-Territorial Committee on Drinking Water (CDW), has posted the Guideline Technical Document on 2-Methyl-4-chlorophenoxyacetic Acid (MCPA) in Drinking Water for a 2-month consultation process from November 17, 2006 to January 19, 2007. A Maximum Acceptable Concentration of 0.002 mg/L for MCPA in drinking water is proposed. MCPA is an herbicide used in both agricultural and domestic settings in a mixture with other herbicides.

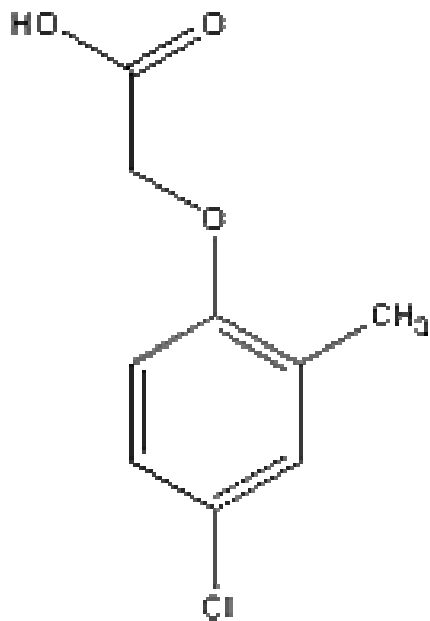

The document can be found at the following Web address:

SYSTEMATIC REVIEWS IN ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH

The National Collaborating Centre for Environmental Health (NCCEH) is one of six centres recently established by the Public Health Agency of Canada as part of the Government of Canada's commitment to renew and strengthen public health. Located in Vancouver at the BC Centre for Disease Control, the focus is on environmental health, initially defined as environmental health services and programs currently delivered by regional and local health agencies throughout the country.

The NCCEH's function involves synthesising, translating, and exchanging knowledge with environmental health practitioners and policymakers; identifying gaps in research and practice knowledge; and building capacity through networks of practitioners, policymakers, and researchers in environmental health. We are committed to serving the needs of practitioners who deliver services and programs, and policymakers who set the policies. Our scope also includes environmental hazards for which there is reasonable evidence of a potential significant burden of illness in the Canadian population.

The NCCEH is pleased to request applications for Systematic Reviews in Environmental Health. This request for applications (RFA) is for systematic reviews on topics that are priorities for environmental health practitioners and policymakers who deliver programs and services at the regional and local level in Canada. The purpose of this competition is to develop a better understanding of the present state of knowledge on these topics by soliciting applications to: synthesize the existing research, provide critical appraisal of the current knowledge level, and identify key gaps in knowledge. Applicants should have experience in conducting systematic reviews and expertise with the topics. A major portion of the systematic review should be completed by March 31, 2007. Applications will be reviewed as they are received with a deadline of February 28, 2007.

ENVIRONMENTAL PUBLIC HEALTH QUOTES

Don't underestimate what CIPHI and we can achieve together as a professional body (and of course, never underestimate the power of the force).

nfok, 2005

I know that it is much harder to tell a farmer something if you are in a suit and tie than just in jeans and shirt. They see you as a city guy who does not know much about real life in the country when in a tie and generally judge you as such.
